

---

Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by stanley11 - 2010/04/28 12:08

---

Hi

Im only having one bridesmaid so i can afford to spend a little bit more. I was going to get her a nice bottle of perfume but turns out she is allergic to most perfumes. Then i thought a clutch, then realised she never goes out and it would be a waste and she would probably give it to her daughter for dress ups.

I want to get her something personal, but elegant aswell. She is allergic to some jewelery too. Im stuck for ideas.....

-----
children personalised books
=====

Re:Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by angelagale12 - 2010/09/16 19:17

---

Hiya.....:)

Hmm.....that's great u want to give useful gift,so now to worry now u take help of online shop or unique wedding decorations where u will definitely find large collection of unique gifts along with affordable coast too,so enjoy with it.....:laugh: :laugh:

Thanks
=====

Re:Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by mkd012 - 2010/11/08 05:27

---

I want to get him something personal, but elegant aswell.
deciding gift is always been a big problem for me and deciding Wedding gifts is a gr8 challenge
=====

Re:Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by mike47 - 2010/12/23 17:39

---

Hi

Take the time to get personal with your bridesmaid - attach a note expressing why you chose them to be a part of your special day.

choose a special time to distribute the gifts, plan a special bridesmaids lunch or a girls spa day.

If the gift you have chosen is to be a part of their wedding day attire - be sure to make that very clear.

thanks

Chair Covers
=====

Re:Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by alton - 2011/02/25 14:12

---

---

Hi

Homemade gifts are the way to go for brides looking for inexpensive presents that still show a lot of heart. If a bridesmaid is a childhood friend, make her a scrapbook filled with pictures from the past to the present. Include heartfelt letters of thanks or hilarious memories from younger years.

A baking bride can put her passion into good use by making picnic baskets for her bridesmaids. The baskets will be cheap, and filled with delicious homemade cooking. Include wedding souvenirs by providing personalized silverware or picnic blankets.

Day at the spa too expensive? Luxury can be cheap with at-home spas gift bags. Make each bridesmaid an assortment of small gifts to pamper herself with. Include bubble bath solution, lotion, face masks, a back scratcher, a foot massager, and a small serving of inexpensive champagne or wine.

thanks

Mothers Day Gifts

=====

Re:Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by sassyface78 - 2011/07/08 23:34

---

Jewellery is often a traditional gift that is given to the bridesmaids, often to wear on the day and then keep as a memento. I think no matter what gift you give you bridesmaids, it should be something they can keep and remember how much they were appreciated.

Sweet Hampers

=====

Re:Bridesmaid gifts

Posted by sophanderson - 2011/10/26 20:34

---

You do not have to spend loads of money on a gift, the main thing is to show your thanks and get something meaningful.

Baby Shower Gifts

=====